7. To Widya Kartika University staff that worked hard in the university to keep it clean and environmentally friendly.

Finally, the researcher knows that this thesis is not entirely satisfying, but this thesis had been done with the researcher maximum effort. Therefore, the researcher would like any critics or comments to improve researcher writing skill. The researcher hopes that this thesis is worth the reader's time to read and may found something new toward the other researcher that have the same case of study.

ABSTRACT

Calvin, (2022) Power Abuse in Animal Farm by George Orwell.

A society or a nation faces the same problem where the people choose their leader to lead them to achieve community goals. However, the issue lies from the leader itself because a leader can use the authority given to obtain personal gain and that eventually leads to power abuse. This research focuses on the power abuse as depicted in George Orwell's Animal Farm. This study aimed toward finding the factors that transformed the leader's personality and how power is abused in the story. Using Eysenck personality diagram helps the researcher to determine what Napoleon's personality is leaning towards to. This research uses narrative research, a part of a qualitative method that explains how to understand people, culture, and societies. The result found that in abusing power, Napoleon's personality was mostly affected by his own desire that came from himself.
